A line drawing of a modern bar stool. It features a high, curved backrest with a woven mesh pattern. A small, integrated handle is located on the right side of the backrest. The seat is a solid, slightly curved platform. The base consists of four legs, with the front two legs having a slight outward flare. A horizontal bar connects the front legs, and a vertical support leg is positioned between the front and back legs. Dimension lines with arrows indicate the height, width, and depth of the stool.
